Vaccine

Vaccination of children has always been a controversial issue since the introduction of vaccines. Personally, I wholeheartedly support the vaccination structure so as to prevent children's exposure to these fatal diseases. This is the initial step that the state should implement to ensure a healthy and disease-free future for its people. Every year, disease outbreaks in children lead to hundreds of deaths due to the weak immune capabilities of young children. Unlike adults, children are more prone to dying from these diseases.

It was emotional seeing the level of premature destruction the lack of these vaccinations has done to our young children. As I watched the children suffer from such diseases that could have been evaded, it brings to light the greed the level of ignorance, and materialism in our states. Large pharmaceutical corporations have taken to gaining massive profits from these vaccines that were initially offered for free by the governments. The government on its side has since ignored its duty to provide and ensure vaccination is available to all.

People from all walks of the world should view this as a societal responsibility. The society should ensure that each and every one of its members has strictly followed the vaccination procedure. We have religions that go against such practices as going to hospitals. The society should take action against such parents as they ignorantly put their children at risk. It should not be a parental choice to vaccine their children as some parents do not fully cooperate and follow up on the vaccination schedules.

From watching the video, I have come to understand the dire need in our societies to promote vaccination of young children fully. Just because my child and my neighbors' child have been vaccinated should not put us in a comfort zone of ignorance. Every member of society should be actively involved in campaigns and the promotion of immunization to ensure a healthy community. We should respect the health and views of other people who support vaccination. For some of them, this procedure is vital.
